In the Holocaust Anne Frank could have chosen to lose hope but she didn't, and she never gave up. Anne once said, "Where there's hope, there's new life. It fills us with fresh courage and makes us strong again." You always need hope even when life gets hard. My photograph is a little sprout that is growing from the ground. The hard ground symbolizes the hardships in our life, and the sprout represents breaking free.

Anne Frank persevered despite the horrific despair that led a hardship to her family. Her experience had a very big impact on the world. It inspires me to help everyone and pray for peace in the world. Someone always has hope in you, that is God. He will never lose hope in us. If we lose desire to do something then we won't do that, so we should never give up or lose hope. If I get sad, or lose hope, I pray to regain my hope.
